Initialize the window using the specified parent window. This parent window is not necessarily the window which will contain the new window, it may be any other window; it should be in the same application as the new window. If you want the window to appear as a child window of the main window (its parent), you should include the parent window in the constructor call. Otherwise, it will be created as a child of the main window. The default value for parent is wxID_ANY. Note that if you use the Create() function, you can only create one window at a time. If you want to create multiple windows, you will need to use wxWindow::Create
