Accounting - tucifalcon ===== ColinWright I posted this question, and I know you're likely not responding, but just for the benefit of others who may be wondering, what does a business do when they haven't made any earnings and have no income to report? ~~~ tucifalcon There are a few options. One is to run a business where income is not reported (basically a charity or a public good type situation) but you can still make profit. Another is to report income as Net Income (loss) and you can declare liabilities as Current (non-capital) assets. There are also specific types of businesses that might not have any income but make profit. There is plenty of more interesting information in this site to explore. A federal appeals court on Thursday heard a court battle over who gets to be the next president in the event that Rep. Paul Ryan is not chosen to lead the Republican Party. The Republican National Committee intervened in a lawsuit in early March on behalf of prospective rival Michele Bachmann and other challengers to Ryan's candidacy. The RNC said it had an interest in the lawsuit because Bachmann and her challengers "say that they will seek,
