1.Windows Vista Gadget: You will easily be able to see a clock on the right-hand side of your screen, depicting the time of the next prayer. Set it to show any time and it will tell you when to make your ablution, as well as how much time you still have before the next prayer. The time of prayer is defined at system settings in your region and country, as well as the time zone. Prayers Gadget shows the calendar for your specific region and country with different colours for days of the week. Alternatively, you can use a specific Hijri calendar to view the date in the new format. Hijri stands for Islamic Calendar and is the preferred method of defining Islamic days, including the month, year and Islamic date. Prayers Gadget Interface: Prayers Gadget is a Vista gadget that shows Islamic prayer times, Qibla direction, a Hijri calendar, and important Islamic events. It comprises a wide range of configuration properties, and it can be handled even by less experienced users. The interface is made from a small frame with a classic display, that shows the time of the next Islamic prayer and remaining time. But you can increase its size to get additional details, such as the current date in the Islamic calendar, all prayer times, and an analog clock. The frame display mode can be changed from the main menu area, where you can select between classic, modern, 5 days, month, Qibla, calendar, events, and alarm mode. As we have previously mentioned, Prayers Gadget packs numerous settings. You can set your location when it comes to the country, city, latitude, longitude and elevation, as well as select the juristic method for Asr and calculation method for Fajr and Isha, along with the high latitude adjustment method and time zone. In addition, it is possible to set the Hijri date adjustment mode, tune the calculated times for the Fajr, Duhr, Asr and Isha prayers, Maghrib and sunrise, enable Azan and select the times and sound files, and more. The small gadget is very low-demanding when it comes to system resources, running on a minimal quantity of CPU and RAM. It has a good response time and works smoothly, without causing the OS to hang, crash or pop up error dialogs. All in all, Prayers Gadget should please all users who want to keep track of Islamic prayer times. a69d392a70
