The ability of the newborn to control blood pressure (BP) during stress is limited. The objective of the present study was to determine the effects of surgery on the blood pressure response to the stress of endotoxin infusion and to assess the changes in the myocardial norepinephrine content. Twenty-two 4-day-old piglets were anesthetized with halothane and artificially ventilated. Ten piglets underwent 3 days of anesthesia and surgery. The remaining 12 piglets were sham-operated and served as non-operated controls. Four days after the operation, the piglets were anesthetized with halothane and paralyzed with pancuronium. The piglets were then infused with a solution of Escherichia coli endotoxin (0.5 micrograms/kg per minute) for 10 minutes. Blood pressure, heart rate (HR) and plasma catecholamine levels were measured continuously. BP decreased from 54+/-3 to 44+/-5 mmHg (PVasculopathies

Gamescom is obviously already underway, and over the course of the week I'm going to be doing a few hands-on sessions with interesting (and often obscure) games. I've already seen Skyrim, Devil May Cry 4, and Deus Ex: Human Revolution, and on Monday, I'll be heading to Cologne to spend some time with Q1's "top ten"-listed Xbox Live games (you can find the full list at the link in the header). On Tuesday I'm going to be headed to the Microsoft Theater to check out the Xbox 360 booth and do some hands-on time with some Xbox LIVE titles that I missed over the past few weeks – so a list of new games I've yet to see up there includes The Darkness, Carmageddon: Reincarnation, Cooking Mama: Cook Your Heart Out, Assassin's Creed: Brotherhood, Mafia II, and Hell Yeah! Your High School Years. After that I'll be heading to the Deus Ex: Human Revolution and LittleBigPlanet developer Media Molecule's stand to have a little chat with producer Louise Floyd and director Mark Webley, and then I'm looking forward to
